

02 February 2010: MyViMu – The website My Virtual Museum has been launched

In the beginning of February a new website for collectors has been launched: www.MyViMu.com - My Virtual Museum. MyViMu.com enables collectors to easily and quickly establish their own "virtual museum", where they can present their amazing collections.

The website My Virtual Museum includes numerous exhibition spaces developed by its users. Each collector is free to establish their own virtual museum; upload photos of exhibits; and describe and organise their exhibits in collections. Virtual museums can be visited 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, with no restrictions.

One of the extra advantages of MyViMu.com is the possibility for automatic generation of inventory cards for added collections, which can subsequently be printed and used during an inventory of one's collections.

MyViMu.com also provides a platform for communication with other collectors. A discussion forum and a private message system have been made available within the framework of the website. Moreover, each collector is free to assess and comment on exhibits on display in other virtual museums.

The MyViMu.com project has already attracted interest from the Research Institute of History and Geography Awareness (Instytut Badań Historycznych i Krajoznawczych), the editor of periodicals Odkrywca, Gazeta Rycerska and Archeologia Żywa. Joint promotional activities are on the agenda.
